

A method is provided of transferring data from a sender process to a plurality of receiver processes in a hardware description language, which uses a language construct which effects synchronised communication between the sender process and the receiver processes.